Advanced Primary Care for Home-Bound Elders - The Practice for Nurses

Introduction

Singapore is facing an unprecedented rate of population ageing. Despite improvements in population health over the years, the absolute number of frail elders who need long-term care is growing. The waiting time for nursing facilities and sheltered housing is long. Most Singaporeans also prefer to age at home, thus driving up the demand for trained health personnel who can support them appropriately and effectively.

Team-managed home-based primary care addresses the entire bio-psycho-social needs of the elders using primary care principles and care management processes. The multidisciplinary team approach is core to effective care for the home-bound elders.

Nurses play an important role in the interdisciplinary team. This course aims to impart the participants with the foundational knowledge and skillsets unique to a community-gerontological nurse which is crucial to the delivery of high-quality home-based primary care.

Who should Attend

State Registered Nurses with at least 2 years of clinical work experience.

About Hua Mei Training Academy

HMTA is a dedicated provider of training in person-centred multidisciplinary eldercare to support healthy ageing over the life stages.

Its courses for professionals and new market entrants and its consultancy services meet an urgent need for capacity-building in the eldercare sector. It also provides training to family and informal caregivers to empower ageing in place.

Known for its practitioner-to-practitioner training methodology and signature courses in team-managed primary healthcare, HMTA transmits the expertise of the Tsao Foundation, which has been providing quality integrated bio-psycho-social healthcare to older persons in the community since 1993.

Tsao Foundation's training services started in 1995. To advance opportunities in longevity, it also offers a range of courses through the Learning Room at its Community for Successful Ageing (ComSA).
